

Chitwan Jungle Safari

Trip Overview

Making rendezvous with the flatlands of Southern Nepal is in stark juxtaposition to the mountainous northern facet that bestows the simmering trekking experience into the exquisite premises of subtropical Chitwan National Park which stretches itself over 932sq km of the lowland.

Declared to be the first-ever National Park of Nepal in the year 1963, the Chitwan National Park Tour is an enthralling voyage through the Churia Hills, ox-bow lakes, and flood plains of Rapti, Reu and Narayani Rivers to the mirk woods rendering shelter to 43 diverse species of mammals including the rare one-horned rhinoceros, tiger, gharial crocodile, gaur, wild elephant, four-horned antelope, striped hyena, pangolin, monitor lizard and python.

What you will explore in Chitwan Jungle Safari?

Chitwan Jungle Safari provides an alternative angle to jungle exploration as you get to unveil the concealed and dark terrain of wildlands through a secure jeep ride that offers the best bird-watching experience as it possesses total 450 species of birds inclusive of Bengal florican, giant hornbill, black stork, white stork, peafowl, red jungle fowl, egrets, herons, kingfishers, flycatchers, woodpeckers, and several other fowls. March to December is the ideal time for bird watching.

A drive to crocodile breeding center, stopping by the first elephant breeding center in Asia, lifetime opportunity to prepare and offer meals to these elephants, bathing these gigantic beasts in the Rapti River, canoeing through the currents of Rapti River, having aerobic scene of the wildlands through the watchtowers, getting face to face with the raging one-horned rhinos as we join the elephant back riding, bird watching, visiting the nearby Tharu settlements, enjoying the Tharu Cultural Dance and acquainting oneself to the Tharu Culture and many more activities are waiting eagerly for your arrival. So do join now and feel the spirit of wild Nepal and feel the freedom inspiring your inner beast to be unleashed breaking the shackles of social conventions.
